PRESS-TELEGRAM

Wednesday, February 3, 2021

$2.00 FACEBOOK.COM/PRESSTELEGRAM TWITTER.COM/PRESSTELEGRAM

presstelegram.com

BUSINESS

Amazon's Bezos to step down

CEO says he plans to remain with massive company he founded as executive chairman

By Karen Weise

The New York Times

online bookseller named Amazon in 1994, he said the question dustry, turned Amazon into a lothat he was asked most frequently was, "What's the internet?"

Bezos answered by building tertainment and artificial intelli-

Amazon into a $1.7 trillion behemoth that sold so many differ- 57, said his run at ent items online it became known the top of the Seat-When Jeff Bezos founded an as "the everything store." In the tle-based company process, he upended the retail ingistics giant and expanded into ported its latest set of blockcloud computing, streaming engence-powered devices. For a time, he was the world's richest person.

Tuesday, Bezos, was over.

As Amazon rebuster financial results, Bezos said he planned to hand over the reins this summer and transition he intends "to focus my energies into the role of executive chairman. Andy Jassy, 53, CEO of Amazon's cloud computing division, will be promoted to run the com- is set to ripple out beyond Ampany. The change will be effective azon, which Bezos has personiin the third quarter, which starts into the office, I'm excited about this transition," Bezos said in an one of the world's most influential email to Amazon's employees. As executive chairman, he said, and attention on new products and early initiatives."

The changing of the guard fied for more than two decades. His impact on corporate America "As much as I still tap dance and his remaking of the way that goods are sold turned him into technology and business leaders,

BEZOS » PAGE 5

LOS ANGELES

GROCERY WORKERS COULD SEE PAY BUMP

KEITH BIRMINGHAM — STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

A worker stacks potatoes at a grocery store Tuesday. The Los Angeles City Council voted unanimously to draw up an ordinance requiring hazard pay of an additional $5 per hour for workers at major grocery and drug retail stores in the city.

New measure: If City Council OKs ordinance, it would join Long Beach in increasing employee wages

By Elizabeth Chou hchou@scng.com

The day after Kroger said it would shut down two markets in Long Beach in response to a similar measure, Los Angeles leaders voted Tuesday to begin the process for mandating $5 per hour hazard pay for many grocery workers in the city, with several members arguing that such workers have taken on the brunt of the risks as front-line workers during the coronavirus pandemic.

The 15-person L.A. City Council voted unanimously to draw up an ordinance requiring hazard pay for workers at major grocery and drug retail stores GROCERY » PAGE 6

SARAH REINGEWIRTZ - STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Pasadena Unified School District nurse Jhona Rupp vaccinates Dan Deguchi, of the technology department, at McKinley Elementary School in Pasadena on Thursday. Los Angeles County has made progress vaccinating its residents, with 80% of the doses out so far, health officials say.

County: Officials still concerned about vaccine supply but tout ability to get those doses into arms

By David Rosenfeld

drosenfeld@scng.com

While still concerned about the sluggish coronavirus vaccine supply, Los Angeles County public health officials are touting their ability to get nearly 80% of the roughly 1 million doses received so far into the arms of residents, first to health care workers and longterm care residents and now those 65 and older.

"Although our doses are limited, we have immunized so many among the most vulnerable in our communities," said Board of Supervisors Chair Hilda Solis, who later called the figures VACCINES » PAGE 6

CORONAVIRUS

CSULB's vaccination clinic is a system first

Officials have started inoculating faculty and staff, with students next

By Hunter Lee

hlee@scng.com

Cal State Long Beach became the first CSU campus with a coronavirus vaccination clinic and began inoculating staff and faculty on Tuesday.

The university, which has nearly 6,400 full- and part-time employees, expects to administer about 1,170 doses this week at its drive-thru clinic on the second floor of the Walter Pyramid parking structure and at a second station for walk-ups, CSULB spokesman Gregory Woods said. The university received about 2,400 doses from Long Beach, which has its own health department.

Under the state's vaccination plan, the 23 Cal State University system campuses, which have mostly conducted onlineonly learning throughout the pandemic, must work with the shealth agency that has jurisdic $tion\ over\ them-county\ agencies$ CSULB » PAGE 4

CORONAVIRUS

Southland man proud of his actions to thwart spread

By Steve Scauzillo sscauzillo@scng.com

On Feb. 3, 2020, Ken Meng held one of the first news conferences locally to raise awareness of the coronavirus threat and promote efforts to prevent its spread.

In an email to county and state officials, community members and the media, the Chinese American leader and activist living in Rowland Heights wrote in English and Mandarin: "Disasters know no borders."

Though few people came to his mobile home park clubhouse that day, Meng was not deterred. He sent posts to over 100,000 people across the United States on We-MENG » PAGE 5

INDEX

Bridge..... B7,8

....A8

.....B7 Classifieds..... Comics ...... A11,12,B7

Nation+World......A14 Opinion......A9

Puzzles.....A10,12,13,B8 Ship arrivals......A2

Roofing Jobs Guaranteed at an Superior Service for Affordable Price!

FREE WRITTEN ESTIMATE

NO PRESSURE
NO HASSLES

Satisfaction Guaranteed in Writing! CA Lic. No. 847279

CALL TODAY FOR 310-856-9760 FREE ESTIMATE

